

As a concerned citizen who daily bristles at the increasing homogeneity and banality of our media, I strongly oppose any further deregulation and consolidation of those outlets. If we're to be a free people in anything more than name only, our media must reflect the richness and diversity of the people.